When the family had withdrawn, the corpse, which had been permitted to remain upon a leathern couch, was placed in the casket, which was of simple design, black covered and open full length. The body was borne to the church on an oblong, black-covered bler, by about forty students from the Northfield ingitute. Before the bier was raised white roses were sprinkled about the casket. Dr. Scofield and Mr. Torrey led the procession, while following the bier came the following honorary pallbearers: Ira D. Sankey and George C. Stebbins, of Brooking; R. C. Morse and D. W. Mc-Williams, New York; Rev. W. J. Herdman and Rev. George C. Needham, of Philadelphia. The bier was placed in front of the pulpit and the hid of the casket was removed, showing a spray of palm and tyy extending from the feet to the breast. A large number of villagers and visitors then began to file past the body. Mr. Moody's face had every appearance of one enjoying peaceful elegal.

The body remained on view in the church until about 2:30 o'clock. At the public funeral service the music was rendered by the cacif of 150 students. An invocation was followed by the gripture lesson, read by Rev. A. T.

Dr. MacArthur's address was followed by the singing of one of Moody's favorite gospel hymns, "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break."

Rev. Dr. Hillis, of Plymouth church, Brocklyn, said:

"Moody was in my opinion the greatest evangelist since Whitefield, and since the apostle raul there has been no man who has preached to so great a multitude of people and led so many to Christ. To the end of time Mr. Moody's teachings will last. The simplicity of his words went direct to the heart of common men. His conscientionsness, his enthusiasm, his inspired common sense, his kindness, all made him especially fitted for his work."

This injunction Judge Morris dis-solved, holding that the strikers had a perfect right to keep pickets about the works, and to talk to workmen and urge them to come out. He held that there was no positive evidence of threats, and that the number of men employed at the works exceeded the full number of strikers usually kept on picket duty, so that there could be no danger of personal violence. The case will be appealed.

Canadians into keeping their soldiers at home and failing to answer the appeal of England for volunteers for the African campaign.

Lord Paumeefote, the British ambasicator, is too well experienced in American methods to make this matter the basis of official representations at this stage, and, indeed, it is said at the state department that he has not even found it necessary to remonstrate against the alleged violation of neutrality involved in the recruiting of soldiers to the Boer army within the limits of the United States. It is suggested that the explanation for this attitude is a preference on the part of the Eritish to deal with such persons as may enlist here for the Boer army after they leave the boundaries of the United States, and it is not doubted that all of the movements that really promise to amount to anything are being carefully watched with a view to catching the volunteers at some convenient point by a fleet cruiser.

Valuable Hair,

In Bokhara, where the finest and most costly camel's hair shawls are made, the camels are watched while the fine hair on the under part of their bodies is growing. It is so carefully cut that not a hair is lost, and it is stored until enough has been accumu-lated to spin. The yarn made from the hair is of surpassing softness and is dyed all sorts of lovely colors.

"What," asked the sentimental young woman, "was the most touching incident you ever witnessed?" And after some thought Senator Sorchum answered, with emphasis: "An election."—Washington Star.
